

Danielle Woodring

Danielle earned her bachelors degree in Geology from University of Kansas where she specialized in structural geology. Her thesis focused on mapping a region in the Southeast Owshead Mountains in Death Valley National Park. At AGI, Danielle is focusing on the research and policy implications of the ongoing drought in the western United States. She is currently applying to graduate programs where she hopes to continue her focus in structural geology.

- policy
 - intern
 - 2015
 - fall
-