As a student, there is no time like the present to start presenting your research. The 2016 Fall Virtual Poster Showcase at the American Geophysical Union is an easy and cost-effective option for doing so, which enables you to present without having to travel. Talk with your advisor about submitting an abstract between August 8th and September 28th, 2016.

The showcase features an easy-to-use interface where you are guided through:

- Writing and submitting an abstract
- preparing a poster and accompanying video presentation
- Evaluating the work of peers
- Receiving and responding to feedback on their own posters
