

Published on American Geosciences Institute (<https://www.americangeosciences.org>)

Home > NSF, NGA Release First Unclassified Digital Elevation Models of Alaska

NSF, NGA Release First Unclassified Digital Elevation Models of Alaska

The National Science Foundation (NSF) and National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency (NGA) announced that they have publicly released new, unclassified, three-dimensional topographic maps of Alaska as part of the White House initiative to inform better decision-making in the Arctic. The digital elevation models are the first to be released by the ArcticDEM project.

Tags:

- geotimes, remote sensing, alaska, climate, nsf
-