

AAPG: 2017 Imperial Barrel Award Competition Updates

American Association of Petroleum Geologists

College/University geoscience programs still have time to apply to participate in the 2017 Imperial Barrel Award (IBA). This is a competition hosted by American Association of Petroleum Geologists, and "is an annual prospective basin evaluation competition for geoscience graduate students from universities around the world. In addition to competing for scholarship funds, there is much international prestige that comes from competing or winning the competition. Not sure what to expect? Check out this video of the 2016 IBA competition awards ceremony that took place in Calgary of last year.

Tags:

- geotimes, contest, petroleum, energy resources, member society, higher education
-