

AAG: Unveils New Disciplinary Data Dashboard

American Association of Geographers

 and or type unknown

The American Association of Geographers (AAG) have launched a dashboard to provide members access to data on geography and geographers. These data can be used to help support applications to establish new degree programs, or encourage students to major in geography and provide insight into the status of geography literacy and national trends in higher education. Due to data collection efforts over the past decade, there were many locations where data were stored, but now it has been consolidated to one location. Data cover gender, diversity, departments, geography careers, AAG Annual Meetings and archival information. AAG staff will publish reports on these data to the dashboard over the upcoming months.

Tags:

- geotimes, geography, workforce, higher education, k-12
-