

Directory of Geoscience Departments

This year AGI is releasing the 54th edition of the Directory. Beyond the comprehensive list of departments, faculty, and their specialties, features for this edition include lists of degree programs and certificates offered by the departments; indication by departments of their online course offerings; and a new and expanded set of specialties making it even easier to locate topical experts. The Directory of Geoscience Departments gives universities and students the tools to compare data amongst institutions when making key academic or professional decisions.
