

GSL Surveys Geoscientists Following Brexit Vote

Geological Society of London

Vote Leave Poster from the Summer 2016 EU Referendum in Britain

The Geological Society of London (GSL) is asking British geoscientists to complete a survey on three policy initiatives following the Brexit vote to leave the European Union. This survey is designed to capture views and information from geoscientists about the challenges and opportunities posed by: the Industrial Strategy, the risks and challenges around Brexit and the Great Repeal Bill and the Higher Education Bill. The survey is divided into three parts, with a section on the industrial strategy, one on risks and challenges around Brexit, particularly the environmental legislation wrapped up in the Great Repeal Bill and thirdly on the proposed changes to Higher Education.
