

AGU Board Approves Rights and Responsibilities of Scientists Statement

American Geophysical Union

On April 13th, the American Geophysical Union's (AGU) Board of Directors approved a statement on the "Rights and Responsibilities of Scientists." A story in Eos explains that the statement underscores the ethical duties of scientists since there is a public service component, but it also argues that this should ensure a scientist's right to conduct science and collaborate freely. The original press release is available here.

Tags:

- geotimes, member society, ethics
-