

Published on American Geosciences Institute (<https://www.americangeosciences.org>)

Home > Oh the Places You'll Go - At the AIPG National Meeting in Nashville! #geoscience

Oh the Places You'll Go - At the AIPG National Meeting in Nashville! #geoscience

American Institute of Professional Geologists

From faultlines to karst topography, to whiskey and Corvettes, attendees of this year's American Institute of Professional Geologists meeting are bound to explore some exciting locales. In the recently published list of field trips, geoscientists have the opportunity to explore the Tennessee-Kentucky area including the Harpeth River and Stones River Fault Zones, Mammoth Caves, a Native American burial mound, or and underground zinc mine. Don't worry though, there are plenty of social opportunities too! Attendees can enjoy a dinner cruise, The National Corvette Museum or participate in a Jack Daniel's Distillery Tour. Find out more in the latest issue of The Professional Geologist.

Tags:

- geotimes, member society, meeting
-