

Primary Science Teaching Trust Endorsed Award for Carol Sampey

Geological Society of London

There is much evidence to suggest that children's perception of science is formed before they leave primary school. To ensure that that primary students do not lose that latent interest and enthusiasm for the world around them, and the science that underpins this, they need innovative, creative and dedicated science teachers. The Primary Science Teaching ... Continue reading ?
