'Working Together': See AGI's 2021 Annual Report

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — The American Geosciences Institute (AGI) is pleased to announce release of its annual report, Working Together, which highlights many of the impactful activities of AGI from October 2020 through September 2021 and provides a detailed statement of financial position covering the past three fiscal years.

"As this report demonstrates, AGI's greatest achievements arise from the vital collaborations and partnerships continually forged among leading organizations and professionals in our community," says AGI Executive Director Jonathan Arthur. "AGI is founded on the premise that the geoscience community works best when working together, and we look forward to deepening geoscience organization partnerships in the years to come."

Working Together: 2021 Annual Report is available at <https://www.americangeosciences.org/annual-report> now.
