

Published on American Geosciences Institute (<https://www.americangeosciences.org>)

Home > Earth Science Teaching Award: See the Webcast

Earth Science Teaching Award: See the Webcast

Earth Science Teaching Award: See the Webcast

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Geoff Camphire (gac@americangeosciences.org)

12/9/2014

Alexandria, VA - With just over a month left to apply, now is the time to go online and view a new webcast about the prestigious Edward C. Roy Jr. Award for Excellence in K-8 Earth Science Teaching. The free, two-minute webcast provides an overview of the competition. To view the webcast, visit <http://www.earthsciweek.org/webcasts/EdRoy2015>.

AGI has expanded the eligibility requirements. In addition to U.S. teachers, instructors in the United Kingdom may compete. The program, a major part of Earth Science Week, recognizes one full-time teacher from kindergarten to eighth grade, or the U.K. equivalent, for leadership and innovation in Earth science education.

To enter the 2015 competition, applications must be postmarked by January 20, 2015. The winner will receive a $2,500 prize and a travel grant of $1,000 to attend the National Science Teachers Association (NSTA) Annual Conference in March 2015 in Chicago to accept the award. To learn more, U.S. teachers should visit <http://www.americangeosciences.org/education/awards/roy>. U.K. teachers should visit <http://www.geolsoc.org.uk/education>.

###

The American Geosciences Institute is the global leader in geoscience information. AGI is a nonprofit federation of 50 geoscientific and professional associations that represents more than 250,000 geologists, geophysicists and other earth scientists. Founded in 1948, AGI provides information services to geoscientists, serves as a voice of shared interests in the profession, plays a major role in strengthening geoscience education, and strives to increase public awareness of the vital role the geosciences play in society's use of resources, resiliency to natural hazards, and interaction with the environment.

Press Release PDF:

09DEC2014_RoyAwardWebcast.pdf
