

2002-2003 AGI Fellow Larry Kennedy

Larry Kennedy came to Capitol Hill from Reno, where he was pursuing a graduate degree in hydrology at the University of Nevada after a 20-year career in the mining industry. He also holds a doctorate in geochemistry from the University of Western Ontario. Kennedy chose to work for his home-state senator, Harry Reid (D), who is the assistant minority leader in the 108th Congress. Kennedy is working on mining and other resource and public-land issues.

Larry Kennedy and the other 2002-2003 geoscience fellows are profiled in the December 2002 issue of Geotimes. In addition, he wrote the following columns in Geotimes:

- Scientist on the Hill: An Introduction (3/03)
  - A Geological Path to City Hall (8/03)
  - Our Public Lands (11/03)
  - Dim Prospects for Geosciences '05 (3/04)
