

Be a Voice for Science with AGU

The new AGU Voices for Science program has been designed give AGU members with an interest in science policy or communications the unique opportunity to hone their skills while working directly with AGU staff to regularly conduct outreach in their own communities. Throughout the year you will receive personalized support, plus AGU will bring you to Washington, D.C. twice: for an in-depth training workshop in April, and for targeted events at Fall Meeting 2018.
