

Critical Minerals Mapping Initiative (CMMI) Update

Critical Minerals Mapping Initiative

Organized by the Geological Survey of Canada, Geoscience Australia, and the United States Geological Survey

Hosted by the American Geosciences Institute

This forum will present an update on the Critical Minerals Mapping Initiative (CMMI), a joint research program between the Geological Survey of Canada (GSC), the U.S. Geological Survey, and Geoscience Australia (GA). Presenters will provide the latest updates to the critical mineral portal (www.criticalminerals.org), the Critical Minerals in Ores database (CMiO), and its underlying deposit classification system. New critical mineral research and modelling results will also be presented from each of our three geological surveys. The forum will conclude with a question and answer period that will allow participants to interact with the speakers and engage on the topics of critical mineral research and public geoscience.

For more information, including registration details, please visit: www.americangeosciences.org/webinars/cmmi-forum-2022

This event will be conducted in English with live captioning in French, Spanish, Portuguese, Russian, Modern Chinese, and Hindi.

16 March 2022 15.00 - 17.00 EDT

12.00 (Vancouver) * 15.00 (Toronto, Lima, New York) * 19.00 (London) * 20.00 (Paris, Lagos)
21.00 (Johannesburg) * 22.00 (Nairobi) | 17 March 2022: 00.30 (Mumbai) * 01.00 (Dhaka)
03.00 (Beijing) * 04.00 (Tokyo) * 06.00 (Sydney)

Speakers

Albert Hofstra, United States Geological Survey, USA
Simon van der Wielen, Geoscience Australia, Australia
Marie-Aude Bonnardot, Geoscience Australia, Australia
Louise Corriveau, Geological Survey of Canada, Canada
Omid Haeri Ardakani, Geological Survey of Canada, Canada
George Case, United States Geological Survey, USA

Please contact Christopher Lawley at christopher.lawley@NRCan-RNCan.gc.ca with any questions about this event.

